When I have time, I go to see a new film at the <sup>0</sup> library / cinema / pool in my town. I often choose <sup>1</sup> a musical / a horror film / an adventure film because I like all the singing and dancing! The <sup>2</sup> directors / actors / cameramen that you see in the film aren't always very well-known, but I don't mind. The <sup>3</sup> animation / plot / make-up is often a good story, and the ending is usually quite <sup>4</sup> awful / silly / moving, so I like that. The only films I really can't stand are <sup>5</sup> action / science fiction / comedy films, because they all talk about the future, but no one really knows what will happen.

When he was still at school, Steve decided he wanted to become a famous chef, just like Jamie Oliver. So when he left school, he got a job in a restaurant and learnt everything he could about food and cooking. He loved his job there, and the people were really nice to him. But he soon saw that to become really successful, he needed to go to catering college and get a diploma. So that's exactly what he did. Steve didn't really like exams at school, but when he was at college he studied very hard and passed everything. Now he has his own restaurant. He hasn't become famous yet, but he hopes it will happen one day!

I'm Jake, and last night I had to watch a programme on TV that was all about recycling. Our teacher said we should watch it for our class project. In the programme, a scientist was talking about how important it is to recycle everything we can. He was very passionate about it all, and he clearly thought that we don't recycle enough. For example, he said that some things, like carrier bags, for example, aren't recycled. There's the same problem with many plastic bottles. I found that surprising. But he was pleased that a lot of garden waste is composted, and that some fleeces are made from plastic bottles. In fact, the fleece that I wear for school is made from recycled materials. No wonder it smells funny!

- 0 Jake watched the TV programme because his teacher told him to.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
- 1 The scientist in the programme was happy about how much we recycle.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
- 2 Carrier bags are the only things that we don't recycle now.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
- 3 It's difficult to recycle plastic bottles in some places.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
- 4 The scientist was happy about what is happening with garden waste.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
- 5 The students' fleeces at Jake's school are made from recycled plastic bottles.  True.  False.  Doesn't say.
