READING

ANCIENT EGYPTIANS AND THE SPHINX

The ancient Egyptians were masters of recreating what they observed in the night time sky onto the Earth. This concept, known as dualism, is the division of something within the physical world into two opposing or contrasting aspects. As part of their spiritual beliefs, they imagined the Earth to be the counterpart or opposite to the celestial realm, or the sky. They believed that the Earth and the sky were intimately connected, and achieved a sense of balance and order together. They recounted these beliefs in the form of stories or myths. Myth was one way in which they could communicate and explain their understanding of the natural phenomenon that they saw and observed on the Earth and in the sky, as well as, social conditions

A classic example of dualism in the ancient world of the Egyptians includes the Sphinx and the Pyramids of Giza.

The constellation Leo, in Egyptian myth, was known as the protector of the underworld.
