As we have practiced before , a noun is a person, place or thing, and an adjective is a word that describes a noun:

adjective	noun
clever	teacher
small	office
black	horse

Sometimes we use a noun to describe another noun. In that case, the first noun "acts as" an adjective.

noun as adjective	noun
history	teacher
ticket	office
race	horse

If you remember this, it will help you to understand what is being talked about. Look at this examples:

- a race horse is a horse that runs in races
- a horse race is a race for horses
- a boat race is a race for boats
- a love story is a story about love
- a war story is a story about war
- a tennis ball is a ball for playing tennis
- tennis shoes are shoes for playing tennis
- a computer exhibition is an exhibition of computers
- a bicycle shop is a shop that sells bicycles

Note, too, that we can still use a real adjective to qualify a "noun as adjective" structure:

- empty coffee jar
- honest car salesman
- delicious dog food
- rising car production costs
- famous England football team coach
