

NarwhalsOcean Animals- Whales*Belugas*A. Drag and drop. Fill in the blanks with the correct word.

bigger	fish	can	lives	tusk	eggs
--------	------	-----	-------	------	------

The narwhal is a type of whale which (1) _____ in the Arctic Sea, around the North Pole. It is a mammal, so it doesn't lay (2) _____; it gives birth to live young. The narwhal needs to swim up for air every twenty-five minutes. It eats squid, shrimp, crab, and (3) _____. The narwhal is smaller than a sea lion and a beluga whale, but (4) _____ than a seal. It has a round, gray body, and the males have one long tooth that looks like a unicorn horn. It is called a tusk. The males use their (5) _____ to catch food and to fight. Narwhals live in groups. There are between fifteen and twenty whales in a narwhal family. The narwhal (6) _____ swim under the ice and find holes to come up and breathe.

B. Write questions for these answers. Match the colours! Use Where do...? Can...? What do...? Do...?*

?	Narwhals live in the Arctic Sea
?	Yes, narwhals can swim under the ice.
?	Narwhals eat squid, shrimp, crab and fish.
?	Yes, narwhals need to swim up for air.

What do beluga whales eat? Read the descriptions and write the animal names under their pictures.

Crabs are crustaceans. They are hard on the outside. They have six long legs and two pincers that go snap!

Shrimp are also crustaceans. They are small and curved with little legs and have two antennae.

Squids are mollusks. They are soft like jelly and have eight tentacles.

The arctic cod is a fish. It has three fins on top, and two fins underneath. It is long and thin.

The greenland halibut is also a fish. It is round and flat.

				