

Week 26

English Mastery

Primary 2

The Write Tribe

FOOD POISONING

NAME:

Teacher's comments:

PART 2

Fill in the blanks

FOOD POISONING

gnawing	nauseous	wolfing down
consume	expired	sniffed
inspect	clutching	food poisoning
contaminated

Diarrhea is bad. Explosive diarrhea is unbelievably bad. I learnt the lesson the hard way. It was so unforgettable, the stench lingered for days.  STARTING WITH THE LESSON LEARNT

It all started with a piece of cake. I was at the canteen with my best friend, Josh. "I don't think you should eat that cake. It's way past its expiration date." Josh warned. I cocked my head to the side and raised an eyebrow at him. "Expiration date?" I asked. Josh squinted his eyes and looked at the small print on the package. "It says it 1. _____ a month ago Vianne! You shouldn't 2. _____ expired food!" Josh exclaimed. I 3. _____ the cake. It smelled fine! "Come on! What could possibly go wrong?" I laughed and took a large bite. The moment the cake caressed my taste buds, I stuck out my tongue and turned up my nose. Yuck! It tasted bad. Feeling embarrassed to spit it out, I swallowed it whole. "That's the yummiest cake I had ever eaten!" I lied to Josh. Little did I know 4. _____ the cake would be the worst idea ever.

FORESHADOW

Everything was fine until I reached the classroom. It was Math lesson. Let me tell you a little about my teacher, Miss Rudy. She's the meanest teacher in our entire school. Today in particular, she was in a stormy mood thanks to my classmates causing a ruckus. Halfway through the lesson, my stomach was churning as if there was a war going on inside. I felt a sudden need to vomit. I was feeling

gnawing	nauseous	wolfing down
consume	expired	sniffed
inspect	clutching	food poisoning
contaminated

5. _____ and a 6. _____ pain was rising in my tummy. My face turned a sickly green. I mustered up courage and raised my hand, "Teacher, I really need the toilet!" I squeaked. "No. We had enough disruption today." she replied curtly. "But, I really need it!" I croaked, 7. _____ my tummy. She arched her eyebrows at me, surprised I talked back to her. I could feel my potty emergency going past critical. I could not hold it any longer. The next thing that happened made everyone's jaw drop and eyes pop open.

ANTICIPATION

Within seconds, our white uniforms were painted brown. Everyone got to know me on such an intimate level that day that they could tell what I had for recess. Not only Miss Rudy's glasses were stained brown, she was covered with brown goo from top to bottom. "Get out!" she screamed at the top of her lungs. I sprinted from the classroom and headed straight to the boys' toilet. I spent so much time on the toilet bowl, I swear I became, 'best friends' with it. When I returned back, I felt very embarrassed. My cheeks turned beet red and I trudged back to my seat with a sheepish smile. While everyone stared daggers at me, I lowered my eyes in shame. Wiping the brown goo off his face, Josh added insult to the injury by stating, "Told you! That cake was probably 8. _____ with bacteria. This is why you should never eat expired food!" Contaminated food causes 9. _____ . I learnt the lesson the hard way.

LESSON

From that day on, I learnt to 10. _____ the food packaging for expiration dates. After all, health is wealth.

PROVERB

INTRODUCTION - 10 MINUTES

HELPING WORDS
expiration date
sniff
wolfed down
cocked my head to the side and raised an eyebrow
stuck out my tongue
turned up my nose

1.

CONFLICT - 10 MINUTES

HELPING WORDS
nauseous
gnawing pain
face turned a sickly green
clutched my tummy
arched her eyebrows at me

2.

CONCLUSION - 10 MINUTES

HELPING WORDS
contaminated
food poisoning
inspect
health is wealth

4.

Spelling test

1. She _____ in surprise.

2. He _____ in confusion

3. A _____ spread across his face

4. His face turned _____.

