

♦ some / any* + plural nouns

♦ a / an, some and any

- We often use there is / isn't with a / an: There is a sofa. / There isn't an armchair.
- We often use there are / there aren't with some and any: There are some chairs. / There aren't any neighbours.
- We use some and any with plural nouns. Some = not an exact number, e.g. There are some eggs in the fridge.
- We use some in affirmative [+] sentences, and any in negative [-] and interrogative [?].

Now, read the conversation and choose the correct options. Then listen and check.

A Tell me about your flat, Danny.

B Oh, OK. Um, There's living room...

A Right. Are there armchairs in the living room?

B No, but there's orange sofa. I'm not sure if I like it, really.

A Hmm. What about the bedroom?

B The bedroom is quite small. There's bed, and there are shelves for my books. But there isn't wardrobe.

A Oh. And the kitchen?

B It isn't very big. There aren't cupboards, but there are nice plants.

A Danny, why are you living there?

B Well, it's very cheap ...
