Mr No Clue isn't the kind of person who works 24/7. Before having supper, at a quarter to six, he takes dancing lessons and plays 'I spy...' with the kids in the neighbourhood. Everybody likes him. People say that he is a very gentle person.

At twelve o'clock, he returns home and has lunch. He never takes a nap; instead, he works on the clues he finds: he develops pictures, analyses footprints and studies unsolved crimes.

At a quarter past five he has some toast and black coffee for breakfast and he reads the newspaper. His favourite sections are the local news and the editorial but when he has time he also reads the comics and the horoscope.

At half past seven, he has supper and at ten o'clock he goes to sleep. At five in the morning, while you are still sleeping, he is solving mysteries. He often appears in newspapers under headings like: 'Mr No Clue solves another mystery'; 'Mr No Clue still has no clue'. He is very famous in his town. So, when he is at work, he is in disguise in his hat and overcoat.

Let me introduce the sneakiest private detective in the world, Mr No Clue. As you can see, he is a man of medium height. He has got ginger hair, big round eyes and a bushy moustache. Mr No Clue loves searching for hidden clues and solving crime mysteries. On a typical day he gets up at five in the morning... too early! He believes that it is easier to find unsolved mysteries when everybody is still asleep.

At half past five, he gets dressed and checks his briefcase to make sure he has a magnifying glass, a torch, gloves, a camera, a notepad, sunglasses, and an extra hat. At six o'clock, he starts his work, usually in the streets, under bridges, and in alleys.
