A CELEBRITY STORY

One day, not many years ago, Lionel Messi decided to travel by underground in the City of Buenos Aires. He wanted to test his celebrity because he didn't believe he was that famous. So, he walked into an underground station but didn't get on the train, he stayed there, looking at people. People didn't look at him; they walked past him and didn't show any recognition. Ha ha ... Was Messi right? He wasn't so famous? When the experiment was finished, Lio climbed up the stairs into the street, crossed an avenue and then ... only then ... a teenager shouted: Messi! Messi!!! And the traffic stopped, and the world stopped, and people asked him for autographs, and touched him, and ... Messi confirmed his celebrity and the love of the people.

Messi is famous and people adore him, but his experiment was at the wrong time and place. They just didn't see him.
