

Read the dialogue between Tom and Dan.

Friendship.

Dan: Hello Tom! You look exhausted and sad. What's the problem? You must have been working too much!

Tom: Hi Dan! Yes, my friend, I feel like I'm drowning. My job is very demanding and my house looks like as it hasn't been cleaned for years. I don't time for anything!

Dan: That's sound as if you are stressed and overwhelmed. You should have had your work done by your secretary.

Tom: I know, but she may have had a lot of things to do because she recently had a baby. She feels like sleeping at work.

Dan: Do you know about stressed symptoms? Nowadays It is so popular. You feel as if You are tired, worried, frustrated, disappointed and infuriated. If I were you, I would ask another person to help me. What about having your house cleaned three times a week? So, you can rest and organize yourself.

Tom: I should have heard you before! I will take into consideration your advice. Tell me, how are things going? Would you like to have roast chicken with mushrooms as always? It smells delicious and tastes like heaven!

Dan: My life looks like art; it couldn't have been better. I usually take things easy. Oh! Excuse me, I haven't got my wallet. I can't have forgotten it at home.

Tom: You must have left it in the car!

Dan: Can you call the waitress, while I go to fetch my wallet?

Tom: okay, I feel like I can eat a horse. Please, Hurry up!

Friendship.

Dan: Hello Tom! You look exhausted and sad. What's the problem? You must have been working too much!

Tom: Hi Dan! Yes, my friend, I feel like I'm drowning. My job is very demanding and my house looks like as it hasn't been cleaned for years. I don't time for anything!

Dan: That's sound as if you are stressed and overwhelmed. You should have had your work done by your secretary.

Tom: I know, but she may have had a lot of things to do because she recently had a baby. She feels like sleeping at work.

Dan: Do you know about stressed symptoms? Nowadays It is so popular. You feel as if You are tired, worried, frustrated, disappointed and infuriated. If I were you, I would ask another person to help me. What about having your house cleaned three times a week? So, you can rest and organize yourself.

Tom: I should have heard you before! I will take into consideration your advice. Tell me, how are things going? Would you like to have roast chicken with mushrooms as always? It smells delicious and tastes like heaven!

Dan: My life looks like art; it couldn't have been better. I usually take things easy. Oh! Excuse me, I haven't got my wallet. I can't have forgotten it at home.

Tom: You must have left it in the car!

Dan: Can you call the waitress, while I go to fetch my wallet?

Tom: okay, I feel like I can eat a horse. Please, Hurry up!

Examples from the text:

1) "You must have been working too much!"

- I'm making a deduction or a speculation about the past. I'm almost sure.

2) I can't have forgotten it at home.

- I'm almost sure that something did not happen or it is impossible.

3) "she may have had a lot of things to do".

- It is possible that something happened or was true.

4): I should have heard you before!

- Someone did not do the right thing. Express regret or criticism

What they should / shouldn't / must/ can't / may have done?

1) I couldn't understand anybody in Brazil. They speak too fast. 	a) She shouldn't have eaten so much chocolate yesterday.
2) Ann is in bed with stomach ache. 	b) I'm certain that she must have cleaned her house alone.
3) When was the party? I've forgotten the date. 	c) You should have written it down.
4) Paul was late because there was so much traffic. 	d) Perhaps Mary might have taken it to buy some food.
5) There isn't any money in my wallet! 	e) You should have learnt Portuguese before you went.

6) Amanda was at the party last week. I saw her there.

f) You should have worn sunscreen.

7) She looks really exhausted.

f) You can't have seen her there because she was at home.

8) I went to the beach and it was too hot, I got sunburned!

g) I'm sure that he must have fallen asleep.

1) I couldn't understand anybody in Brazil. They speak too fast.

You should have learnt Portuguese before you went

2) Ann is in bed with stomach ache.

She shouldn't have eaten so much chocolate yesterday.

3) When was the party? I've forgotten the date.

You should have written it down.

4) Paul was late because there was so much traffic.

I'm sure that he must have fallen asleep.

5) There isn't any money in my wallet!

Perhaps Mary might have taken it to buy some food.

6) Amanda was at the party last week. I saw her there.

You can't have seen her there because she was at home.

7) She looks really exhausted.

I'm certain that she must have cleaned her house alone.

8) I went to the beach and it was too hot, I got sunburned!

You should have worn sunscreen.