Reading

H. Read the text and fill in the missing words.

Teenagers today go through many problems. They often argue 46 their parents, have problems with their friends, worry 47 how they look and haven't got much money. The teenage years are difficult because young people go through new things, but these new things are also exciting and don't always need to be so painful.

One of the problems teenagers deal with is the homework they have to do every day. Teens would much rather 48 time with their friends, 49 sports or doing their favourite hobby. However, homework is an important part of school and it must be done by the students.

Some things teenagers can do to spend less time on their homework, is to

- choose a comfortable place to work
- create a homework plan
- start with the hardest part of their homework
- ask for extra help 50 they need it.

Writing

J. Write a short article for your school newspaper about the difficulty teens have when talking to their parents (80-100 words). Use the notes below and the text in Ex. H as a model.

- What kinds of problems do teenagers face? (homework, friends, money, worry about how they look)
- Why are arguments with parents such a big deal? (parents still control teenagers' lives, they often don't understand teens, it's important to be happy at home)
- How can relationships with parents become easier? (telling parents how you feel about something can help them understand, parents will often give teens more freedom if teens act in a responsible way)
