Read the passage below and decide whether the following statements are True or False. Write T for True, F for False.

The youngest of five siblings of a family from Lancaster, Pennsylvania, Hugh Herr (born October 25, 1964) was a prodigy rock climber: by age eight, he had scaled the face of the 3,544m Mount Temple in the Canadian Rockies, and by 17 he was acknowledged to be one of the best climbers in the United States.

In January 1982, after having ascended a difficult technical ice route on Mount Washington in New Hampshire, Herr and a fellow climber, Jeff Batzer were caught in a blizzard, became disoriented and passed three nights in -29 °C temperatures. By the time they were rescued, the climbers had suffered severe frostbite. Both of Herr's legs had to be amputated below the knees.

Following months of surgeries and rehabilitation, Herr was doing what doctors told him was unthinkable: climbing again. Using specialized prostheses that he designed, he created prosthetic feet that made it possible to stand on small rock edges, and titanium-spiked feet that assisted him in ascending steep ice walls. As a result of using the prostheses, Herr climbed at an advanced level as he had before the accident, making him the first person with a major amputation to perform in a sport on par with elite-level, able-bodied persons.

After his climbing career, Herr began to focus on academics, previously an area of little interest to him. He earned an undergraduate degree in physics at his local college and a master's degree in mechanical engineering at MIT, followed by a PhD in biophysics from Harvard University.

After this, at MIT, he began working on advanced leg prostheses that imitate the functionality of the human leg.

Currently, Herr is an associate professor in MIT's Program in Media Arts and Sciences and in the Harvard-MIT Division of Health Sciences and Technology. As head of the Biomechatronics research group at the MIT Media Lab, he focuses on developing wearable robotic systems that serve to augment human physical capability.

Hugh's invention is already making an enormous difference to the lives of people with disabilities. "Once you get used to it, it feels like you have your leg back," said Garth Stewart, a pleased soldier who lost a leg in the Iraq war. Thanks to Hugh, people like Garth can overcome their disabilities and enjoy a better quality of life.
