The Race

Mr Smith, one of the richest man of Smalltown had a furniture Factory. He had 95 people working for him; five of them were new. One day Mr Smith decided to make their Jobs more interesting, so he organized a race between the emmployees and promised a great prize for the winner. He also planned to take part in; of course, because he felt he was the best.

The inscriptions were open. Jhon was the heaviest one, Peter was the youngest one, Bill was the tallest one, Bob was the oldest one, Mr Smith was the strongest one and Edward was the weakest one. Suddenly another person slowly came into the race, Fred the shortest and the thinnest one in the Factory.

The race was going to start; It was one of the hottest days of summer but at 5:00 o'clock it was fresher and rapidly the competitors were ready and the race finally started. In the first mile Mr Smith had to stop, he was very thirsty and began to feel dizzy. Edward who was going the fastest suddenly fainted. The rest were very close to each other but Fred started to run faster and faster and he won the race. He was the happiest of all. Bob arrived in second place, Peter on third, Bill on fourth and John on fifth. The paramedics carefully helped Fred and for Mr Smith was the worst day of his life because he was supposed to be the strongest one. He felt ashamed with the employees while they were very proud of Fred because they never thought he was going to win. The End.

Taking into account the Text. Answer the following questions.
