Interview

Answer these questions in your book(Page17)

- a) Have you ever been asked about what you want to do in the future? How do you answer this type of question?
- b) How would you describe yourself? Is it a challenge to know who you really are?
- c) Do you think you have already decided on the person you are going to be when you grow up?

After that, Interview some classmate and put his/her answers in the link below

Read the following opinion article and reflect about the information it presents.

TEENS: WHO AM I EXACTLY?

Who am I exactly? It's not an easy question to answer. Identity is something teenagers struggle with.

As we develop into adults, we're also growing into ourselves. Life presents us with considerably more freedom to stretch and shape our inner clay as the degree of our parents' influence lessens with every year.

Our identity is reflected in, well, everything. How we treat others, how we peel our bananas, how we deal with challenges and temptations. What we hang on our walls. Who we love and who we despise. [...]

As I became more involved in extracurriculars and forged some very strong bonds with friends, I've discovered some important facets of myself. When I joined the speech and debate club, I uncovered a passion for speaking and emotion [...].

So who am I exactly? I am a daughter. A friend. A speaker. A worrier. A writer. A thinker.

And so many other things yet to be discovered.

● struggle: lutar, têm dificuldade.
● stretch: esticar, alongar.

● inner clay: eu interior, conteúdo maleável.
● lessens: diminui.

● forged: estabeleci, criei.
● bonds: ligações.
