2- Read the text and and mark (✓) the correct title for it.

☐ Aesop and His Master

☐ Aesop and His Fables

☐ Aesop the Comedy Writer

Aesop was a Greek storyteller. He lived around 2,500 years ago. Some say he was a slave.

His master liked his stories so much that he decided to give Aesop his freedom. The Greeks were like that: they appreciated talent.

There are no records to prove that Aesop ever wrote anything down. Fortunately, many years after his death, people started to write down these fables to share them easily. Now you can find adaptations of Aesop's fables, many of them illustrated, and translated into almost every language. We all enjoy these wonderful stories today—fables that were created a long time ago!
