Do You Want to Write Poetry?

People write poetry for different reasons. Sometimes people have ideas they want to write down so that other people can know what they are thinking. Some people start writing poetry for their children to entertain them. They want to make children laugh by telling them a rhyming story. Some poets want to write about a particular topic. For example, Paul Fleischman loves insects and so he wrote a book of poems all about insects. If you want to write poetry, you need to think about who you are writing for, why you are writing, and what you want to write about.

Answer True or False.
