1. How popular was Pelé?
 2. Which awards does Pelé have?
 3. What were happy coincidences for Pelé?
 4. What is the unknown name of the footballer?
 5. Who found Pelé first?
 6. How did Pelé train at his early age?
 7. What are the main steps of Pelé's career?
- A. Most people have never heard of the name Edson Arantes do Nascimento, but they have heard of Pelé. Without question, Pelé is the greatest soccer player ever. Edson Arantes do Nascimento and Pelé are two names for the same man. Pelé was born on October 23, 1940, in Tres Corações, a small village in Brazil. Soccer is the most popular sport in Brazil, and like most other children of his age, Pelé grew up playing soccer.
- B. Too poor to afford a soccer ball, Pelé and his playmates often made one by tying together a bunch of rags. Their playing field was usually a sidewalk. Old tin cans marked where the goalposts should be. Pelé and the other boys from his neighborhood often dreamed of one day becoming professional soccer players. They formed a neighborhood soccer team, calling it the September 7 team after the name of the street where they lived.
- C. At the age of eleven; Pelé was discovered by Waldemar de Brito, a former professional player. De Brito was then coach of the Bauru Soccer Club. He signed Pelé to play for the junior Bauru team. In 1956, when Pelé was fifteen, de Brito took him to the city of Santos Brazil, to try out for the Santos professional team. Pelé immediately distinguished himself as one of the best players and he was not even sixteen years old yet.
- D. Pelé's first game with Santos, was on September 7 — the name of the street he once lived on, the name of his first team, and the date of Brazil's National Independence Day. In 1957, when Pelé was sixteen, he was selected to play on Brazil's national team. He scored the only goal for Brazil in the first game and another goal in the second game. Then in 1958, Pelé helped Brazil win its first World Cup. Between 1958 and 1970, Pelé played in four World Cups.
- E. Throughout his career, Pelé had an amazing ability to move people. Everybody wanted to see him play. In 1969, a war in Nigeria was stopped for two days because the Santos team had been invited to play there and people on both sides were so eager to see Pelé play. When Pelé retired in 1974, people thought he was leaving the game for good, but six months later he signed up to play for the New York Cosmos in the United States.
- F. Pelé was awarded the 1978 International Peace Award and was named Athlete of the Century in 1980. He also was inducted into the Black Athletes Hall of Fame in 1975. Most recently, Pelé was named the National Olympics Committee's top athlete, even though he never competed in the Olympics! Pelé's name has become synonymous with excellence in soccer. His 20-year career has yielded some of the most memorable moments in soccer history. People today still refer to him as the great Pelé, the King of Soccer.

The Best Picture

When Sebastian was a boy at school, his favourite lesson was art, and he won several prizes for it. Once he left school, he got a position as a clerk in a bank, but three times a week he went to evening classes in art, and whenever he had time at the weekends, he painted.

He painted in a very modern manner — mysterious objects and shapes, women with three pink eyes, large blank areas, and so on.

After a few months he thought, 'Perhaps I can sell some of my pictures and get enough money to afford to leave the bank and become a real artist. Then I can travel around as much as I like, and go to foreign museums, and see other artists' paintings, and study in other countries when I feel like it. Though I try to make the best of the job and I don't regard the work as difficult — at least not at present — I don't like life in a bank. I only enjoy painting.'

In the bank, Sebastian sometimes had to deal with a man who owned a picture shop, and after he had had a few conversations with him, Sebastian invited him to his home one evening to see some of his works. 'Then perhaps you could tell me whether I can really be a good artist and get some money from my painting,' Sebastian said hopefully.

The man said he was prepared to come and see what he thought of Sebastian's work, so he arrived one evening at Sebastian's home. Sebastian took the man to his studio and started to show him some of his pictures, with some pride and hope.

The man looked at them one after the other while Sebastian watched his face, but to Sebastian's disappointment the man did not say anything, and his expression did not change at any of them either.

Then, when he had finished, he looked around, and his glance fell on something else. A happy look came over his face for the first time, and he said, 'Now I like this one very much! It's so full of deep feeling! I'm sure you could sell this one for me!'

'That,' said Sebastian, 'is the place where I clean the paint off my brushes.'
