

REPASO

1. Coloca cada palabra en su lugar según el número de sílabas que tenga, después escribe dos más de cada grupo.

NUEZ

LLUVIA

ELEFANTE

BOTELLA

MONOSÍLABAS	BISÍLABAS	TRISÍLABAS	POLISÍLABAS

2. Marca la sílaba tónica de las siguientes palabras.

BA- LÓN

MA - RI - PO - SA

LEN - GUA

LEN - TE - JAS

MAS - CA - RI - LLA

CA - MI - NO

CA - RA - COL

SAL - TA - MON - TES

SO - PA

3. ¿Qué palabra del ejercicio anterior tiene un diptongo? _____

4. Lee las oraciones y busca la palabra polisémica.

- En la copa del árbol hay un nido.
- En ese armario están guardadas las copas.

La palabra polisémica es: _____

- Anoche vi una lluvia de estrellas fugaces.
- Las estrellas viven en el mar.

La palabra polisémica es: _____

5. Completa con j o con g.

PALABARAS CON J		PALABRAS CON G
Tar__eta	a__edrez	a__enda	__imnasio
__irafa	tra__e	Cole_gio	__eneroso

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million (from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998). The public sector has also become an important employer for women, with 55% of public sector employees being women in 1998 (compared with 45% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people with disabilities, with 15% of public sector employees being people with disabilities in 1998 (compared with 10% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are over 50 years of age. In 1998, 25% of public sector employees were over 50 years of age (compared with 15% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are under 25 years of age. In 1998, 15% of public sector employees were under 25 years of age (compared with 10% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from ethnic minority groups. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from ethnic minority groups (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the Scottish Highlands and Islands. In 1998, 5% of public sector employees were from the Scottish Highlands and Islands (compared with 2% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the Welsh language area. In 1998, 5% of public sector employees were from the Welsh language area (compared with 2% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the Northern Ireland area. In 1998, 5% of public sector employees were from the Northern Ireland area (compared with 2% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the London area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the London area (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the South East area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the South East area (compared with 5% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the South West area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the South West area (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the Midlands area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the Midlands area (compared with 5% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the North East area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the North East area (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the North West area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the North West area (compared with 5% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the Yorkshire and the Humber area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the Yorkshire and the Humber area (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the East of England area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the East of England area (compared with 5% in 1980).

The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the West of England area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the West of England area (compared with 5% in 1980). The public sector has also become an important employer for people who are from the South East of England area. In 1998, 10% of public sector employees were from the South East of England area (compared with 5% in 1980).