The Fox and the stork

One day a fox is making soup for his friends the bear and the lion. A stork smells the soup and goes to see the fox. The stork is hungry.

The fox is mean. He always wants to laugh at people. He invites the stork to have lunch with them. The fox puts the soup on bowls. All the animals are enjoying the soup. But the poor stork can't eat with her long beak and all the animals laugh at her.

The stork leaves the house. She is sad and angry.

The next week, the stork invites the fox to have dinner.

She prepares a delicious fish soup. She puts the fish soup in jars. When the fox tries to eat... He can't! The jars are too tall and skinny. Then, the stork says "Don't worry fox. I'm not like you. I will give you a bowl so you can eat"
