

Reading and Comprehension

A Day in the Life of an Internet Journalist

My name is David Thomas. I'm an Internet journalist. I write a blog about the latest music. People from all over the world read it.

Every day I look for new stories, so I have to read many different newspapers and magazines. I get a lot of information from the mass media. Social networks help me, too, because many bands and musicians post new music on their social network pages. Sometimes, I call my friends to find out about the latest news in the world of music.

My blog is for anyone who can use the Web. Many of my readers use their smartphones to read my stories. I have some advertising on my site, but I don't have to have a publisher like newspapers, and I don't need to broadcast like radio stations. I just press "publish"!

A: Read and choose

1. David Thomas is _____ journalist.
2. People from _____ read his blog.
3. He looks for stories _____
4. He writes for anyone who _____
5. David doesn't have _____
6. All David needs to do to publish his blog is _____