TRUE OR FALSE: READING COMPREHENSION.

Toucans are a "family" of birds. These animals live in the tropical forests of Central and South America and they usually live in pairs or small flocks.

Toucans are colourful birds with enormous but very light beaks. Toucans' bodies are short and compact. The wings are small, as they are forest birds which only need to travel short distances. The legs of a toucan are strong and short. Their toes are arranged in pairs with the first and fourth toes turned backward.

These birds' diet largely consists of fruit and toucans use their beaks to pick up fruit from trees. They also eat insects, lizards, eggs, and even other birds' nestlings.

The rain forests of the world (toucans' home) are disappearing because of deforestation, which is the main reason they're endangered. They are also threatened by humans who capture them for pets, which is a popular trade in some areas.
