

Family and friends

A family is a society cell that lives together on moral and social values. Each family has members such as: close relations and distant relations. Not all family relatives are connected by blood; sometimes they come into the family by marriage and become in-laws. The members usually spend their free time together, they are friendly and happy for each other, and sometimes they grieve together.

In the Republic of Moldova relatives meet on various occasions. They keep up the traditions of baptizing and wedding receptions. There is nowhere in the world such merry and enjoyable get-togethers as in our country. We also keep up the traditions of silver and golden jubilees. When Moldovans meet, home-made food is laid on the table. There is no such thing as a Moldovan reception without cabbage rolls, poultry, beef, lamb, steak and beverages.

Family relationships are basically based on unselfish, sincere, reliable and candid values. The connection is not only by blood; family relationships also rely on trust and lasting friendship.
