

A personal pronoun used as a subject of a sentence is called a subject pronoun.

- Her vacation had to be cancelled due to COVID 19.
- He and I heard all of the details.

A personal pronoun used as a direct object, indirect object, or object of the preposition is called an object pronoun.

- The sea captain took us for a ride on the Lady Matilda. He told him and me stories.

Subject pronouns: I, me, he, she, it, we, and they.

Object pronouns: me, you, him, her, it, you, and them.

- ❖ Remember to use the correct pronoun form with a compound subject or object pronoun.
- ❖ Subject pronouns replace the nouns they represent. Do not use a subject pronoun with the noun it represents.
- no - Carrie she studied Botany
- yes – Carrie studied Botany

DIRECTIONS: Choose the pronoun that best completes each sentence correctly.

1. _____ My friend and (me, I) visited Franklin Roosevelt's home.
2. _____ We saw him and (his, he) cousins in the old pictures.
3. _____ The child on the right is (he, him).
4. _____ You see (him, he) and his pony in the in an old photograph as well.
5. _____ (Us, We) read about how he became crippled with polio.

B. Choose the pronoun that correctly replaces the underlined word or words in each sentence.

1. Admiral Peary and Dr. Cook wanted to reach the North Pole first.

- A. They
- B. Us
- C. Them
- D. We

2. The Eskimo called Marie Peary a blond snowbaby.

- A. you
- B. she
- C. her
- D. it

3. The sledges could glide over the ice pack.

- A. him
- B. it
- C. they
- D. them

4. Admiral thanked the Eskimos for their help.

- A. They
- B. Us
- C. Them
- D. We

5. A woman loaded furs, and then the woman prepared dinner.

- A. him
- B. them
- C. her
- D. she

Extracted from: Grammar & Writing Practice Book/ World of Language
Prepared by: Mrs. C. Marguerite Forbes Moore

