You may have heard of eco-friendly clothing made from materials like bamboo, hemp or eco-fleece, but what about accessories made from recycled sweet wrappers, newspapers, or cola cans?

More and more people are choosing bags and other accessories made from these kinds of materials. These products are both beautiful and fashionable and they help to keep our planet clean, too. This is because these materials would otherwise end up in landfills that pollute the environment. It's much better for the environment when we use these materials for something useful and attractive.

You can also find bags made from recycled leather or bamboo, jewellery made from seeds or fruit and even shopping bags made from paper taken from giant billboards that appear in the street! These eco-friendly goods can last a long time, too, because of the new technology that companies use today. It's also worth remembering that some of the companies making these items help the environment by planting trees or donating money to charities for every bag, belt or bracelet sold.
