THE CAPSULE HOTEL – JAPAN

Japanese capsule hotels have got very small rooms. They are <sup>1</sup> not as comfortable as / not comfortable enough ordinary hotels because each capsule is <sup>2</sup> big enough / as big as a bed and it's <sup>3</sup> large enough / too large for only one person. A person can sit up and read or lie down and watch TV. He or she can't stand up because the ceilings are <sup>4</sup> not high enough / not as high as for that. If the capsule is <sup>5</sup> not cold enough / as cold as, the visitor can turn on the air-conditioner. Many of these hotels aren't <sup>6</sup> far enough / too far from train stations, so they are convenient for travellers, and they are <sup>7</sup> too nice / nice enough for Japanese workers to stay in them. In any case, it's probably never <sup>8</sup> as late as / too late to find yourself a room for the night in a capsule hotel.
