Notice that with inverted negative conditionals, we can't use contractions:

If she doesn't phone soon, we'll have to leave
Should she not phone soon, we'll have to leave.
NOT Shouldn't she phone, ...

If he wasn't a diplomat, he wouldn't have immunity.
Were he not a diplomat, he wouldn't have immunity.
NOT Weren't he a diplomat, ...

If he hadn't told me himself, I'd never have believed him.
Had he not told me himself, I'd never have believed him.
NOT Hadn't he told me himself, ...

1. If she hadn't read the novel, she wouldn't have passed the literature test.
   _____ , she wouldn't have passed the literature test.

2. If I hadn't argued with my father, he would've lent me his motorbike.
   _____ , he would've lent me his motorbike.

3. If Dick doesn't help his friends, they will be angry with him.
   _____ , they will be angry with him.

4. If they don't hurry, they won't catch the train.
   _____ , they won't catch the train.

5. If it weren't so late, we would play a game of chess.
   _____ , we would play a game of chess.

6. If Jeff didn't like Jessica, he wouldn't buy her ice cream.
   _____ , he wouldn't buy her ice cream.

7. If she didn't bully her classmates, she would have more friends.
   _____ , she would have more friends.

8. We would have gone to the cinema yesterday if it hadn't rained heavily.
   We would have gone to the cinema yesterday _____ heavily.