On weekdays, my mother does the shopping for the family. She buys_____, such as bread and rolls (_____), milk, cheese, butter and yoghurt (_____), eggs and chocolate. However, at weekends I always help my mum with the shopping. I often go to small shops or groceries, because the food is fresher and the _____is friendlier there. One problem people have with small groceries is that the range of goods is very _____. Another major disadvantage is that these shops tend to be quite _____. But sometimes I go to bigger supermarkets, hypermarkets and department stores, because they are cheaper and they have a _____. I normally buy meat products, _____, sweets, drinks and _____ there. I shop for clothes at bigger shopping centres/malls, because they are cheaper and you can find all kinds of styles there. People prefer bigger_____, because they may be cheaper and the range of goods is wider. However, these shops are very impersonal and _____ may have to travel a lot to these places. I like shopping in hypermarket because they're opened non-stop and I can buy everything in one place at a low price. The disadvantages of hypermarkets are that they are often incredibly _____, especially at weekends. It's difficult to move with _____ among the shelves. It is better to go shopping with friends, because I don't get bored, and they can help me choose the best dress. Before I forget! I really hate standing in the line/queue at the till/cash register. And I always pay in cash, because my parents never let me pay _____.
