

COORDINATING CONJUNCTION

Use the conjunction in parentheses to join the two sentences into a compound sentence. Use the correct punctuation. The first one is done for you.

1. Almost all Chinese emperors had round faces. Many famous explores had them, too.

Almost all Chinese emperors had round faces, and many famous explores had them, too.

2. People with triangular faces may not be tall. They look tall because of the shape of their faces.

3. These people are confident. They will usually live in a long life.

4. Some may be movie stars. They may work as flight attendants.

5. People with high cheekbones know what they want. It is hard to make them change their minds.

6. People with this shape of face may often be leaders. They may also be criminals.

7. They can control their feelings. They are also intelligent and creative.

8. Square faces usually belong to men. Women can have them, too.