I. Read the questions about how different nationalities spend their free time and guess the answers.

1 Internet

People from Canada spend, on average, 43.5 hours per week online, 8 hours longer than people in the U.S., who come in second. One reason: Canada has long, cold winters, so people spend lots of time indoors.

2 Sports

Soccer is king. In second place, surprisingly, is cricket. Only a few nations play the game seriously, but it's very popular in India, which has 1.2 billion people.

3 Outdoors

New Zealanders spend the most time outdoors. The countryside is perfect for hiking, mountain climbing and water sports. If you live in New Zealand, you're never more than two hours' drive from the ocean. And then there is the rugby, too ...

4 Bars

Spain has six bars per 1,000 inhabitants, easily the highest number. In Spain, a bar is for families, not just drinkers. It's a meeting place and often an eating place (try the tapas!).

5 Galleries and Museums

The U.K. has six of the top 20 most visited art galleries/museums in the world, including the National Gallery, the British Museum and Tate Modern.

7 Party!

It's impossible to say who parties the most, but Brazil's annual carnival makes it a good choice. Some of the best cities for partying include Bangkok (friendly people, great nightclubs), Berlin (live music scene) and the island of Ibiza (dance music).

8 Exercising

The biggest exercisers are people from Greece and Estonia. Over 80 percent of people in those countries exercise regularly. In both countries, soccer and the Olympic sports are the most popular, but Estonia has one very special game: ice cricket!
