

3

Read the text again. Decide whether these sentences are true (T), false (F) or if there is no information given (NG). Then correct the wrong sentences in your exercise books.

- a You can tell when someone is lying to you by 'reading' their body language.
- b You can never tell when someone is lying to you.
- c Animals use body language too.
- d All people who work need to understand body language.
- e Police officers and teachers use an understanding of body language in their jobs.
- f Making eye-contact makes you look confident.
- g In some cultures, sitting with your legs crossed makes you look nervous.
- h Liars always put their head on one side when they are talking to you.

Words with similar meanings

When you are searching for a word with a similar meaning in the text, consider the part of speech of the word you are looking for. For example, if you want to find a similar word in the text to the word 'anxiously', you need to look for an adverb.

anxiously (adv) = nervously uninterested (adj) = bored

4

Read the words in the list below. Identify what part of speech each word is. Write the word and its part of speech into your exercise book.

- a bodies
- b gestures
- c we
- d send
- e interested
- f confused
- g use
- h nervously
- i you

TIME TO TALK

Body language changes according to where you are and who you are with.

Do you agree with the statement above? Use these ideas to help you talk about it.

How you greet people at home, school or work.

How close you stand to other people in public, at home or with friends.

Other kinds of body contact you make with people, for example, arms around shoulders, linking arms or holding hands.

The body language you need for good table manners.