Turn it off!

Something historic happened at the New York Philharmonic on the evening of 10 January 2012, about an hour into Mahler's Ninth Symphony. During the beautiful fourth movement, an audience member's cellphone loudly rang. And rang. And rang again. It was the kind of marimba riff we've all heard on the street from a stranger's phone.

From my seat in Row L, I could see the horrified discomfort of the other audience members from their body language. We all wondered whether the conductor Alan Gilbert would react, and how. Suddenly there was silence. The orchestra had stopped playing. Mr Gilbert had halted the performance. He turned to the man who was seated in the front row, and said: 'Are you going to turn it off? Will you do that?' There was some 'discussion' between the conductor and the cellphone owner, but we couldn't hear it.

In the Avery Fisher Hall many members of the audience stood and demanded that the man leave the hall. They were so furious that I could have imagined them dragging him from his seat on to the stage, tying him to a stake and setting him alight!

When the 'power off' button on the man's phone had finally been located and put to use, Mr Gilbert turned to the audience. 'Usually, when there's a disturbance like this, it's best to ignore it,' he said. 'But this time I could not allow it.'

The audience applauded as if Mahler himself, the orchestra's conductor from 1909 to 1911, had suddenly been resurrected onstage. Mr Gilbert neither smiled nor acknowledged the cheers. Instead he turned to the orchestra, instructing the players to resume, several bars back from the point at which he had stopped the performance. Just before, he raised his baton and turned again to the audience and said, this time with a smile, 'We'll start again.' A few seconds later, the fourth movement resumed.

Mr Gilbert's brave decision that night brought new music to the Philharmonic.
