ASTRONAUTS

Ben Johnson, October 21

In 1961, Yuri Gagarin, a Russian astronaut, went into (1) space on board Vostok 1. He circled the (2) Earth once, and said the view was beautiful. He was in (3) space for 1 hour and 48 minutes. Today, astronauts stay much longer on the International Space Station. They have to use soap on wet towels to keep clean. They can't take a shower because the water will (4) float. They have to eat food from bags or dried food. Although they have to complete (5) checklists and other tasks, the astronauts love looking at Earth just like Yuri Gagarin.
