

Inuits

Listen to the following conversation and fill in the text with missing words :

Teacher: OK, can you tell me about this _____ ?

Student 1 (Natalie): In this picture I see Inuits and I can tell because of the way that they're dressed. And Inuits usually live in Nunavut which is up in... north of Canada which is a lot _____so you have to bundle up!

Teacher: Is it easy to get to Nunavut?

Students: No...

Teacher: No, why not?

Student 2 (Gabrielle): Because there's not many planes that _____there and it's very _____and cold there. So most people think that in Toronto there's many _____and polar bears but actually it's in Nunavut where we have a lot of igloos and polar bears.

Teacher: And can you tell me a little bit more. Are Inuits the only First Nations?

Student 1 (Natalie): So there are many different _____within the Aboriginal society and Inuit is just one of the many. Many Aboriginals live on reserves and _____is basically a little community of – usually of the same tribe that Aboriginals live on. And basically, the reserves were just a way of the government giving back land that they stole from the _____in the past. And there are also many different ways to be..., that you can call Aboriginals. They like to be either called First Nations, Native Canadians, or how I said before, Aboriginals and sometimes you can just refer to them as their tribe name.

Student 3 (Julianna): Also, in these reserves it's actually really hard to find – you should say cheap food because it's so hard to ship them there that the prices are so _____. For example, orange juice can be ten dollars where here it can be about two to three dollars so it's very _____there.

Student 1 (Natalie): And on reserves, people always think “oh that's so cool, they have their own little _____” but actually most reserves especially the ones in the north, not all of them but most don't have access to _____running water or other necessities.

Teacher: Ok, great!
