Then, at at five, she began taking lessons with a world-famous chess tutor who encouraged her to play in local chess competitions from the age of six. These gave her experience in playing against others and improved her skill at the game. Amazingly, she won the World Youth Chess Championship for Girls when she was only ten, and, two years later, she became the youngest person to play in the World Women's Championships.

Her success continued when, in 2008, at the age of 13, she became the youngest ever Chinese chess champion and the youngest female to become a grandmaster. Then, a few years later, in 2010, she won her first Women's World Championship. She also won it in 2011 and 2013, and she is the only player in history who has won three world championships before the age of 20.

These days, you will find her studying at the School of International Studies at Peking University as well as playing chess professionally. Her chess career still continues, and, in March 2015, at the age of 21, she was officially named as the best female player in the world.
