

VINCENT by Don McLean

Starry, Starry,
 your palette blue and gray Look out on a 's day With that the darkness in my soul Shadows on the hills Sketch the and the daffodils the breeze and the chills
In on the snowy linen land

Now I what you tried to say to me
 you suffered for your sanity
How you to set them free
They would not , they did not know how Perhaps they'll listen

Starry, starry
Flaming that brightly blaze Swirling in violet haze Reflect in Vincent's of china blue Colors hue fields of amber grain Weathered lined in pain Are soothed beneath the 's loving

Now I ...

For they could not you But still your love was
And no hope was left in sight
On that starry, starry
You your life, as lovers do
But I could've you, Vincent, This was never meant for One as as you

Starry, starry
Portraits hung in halls Frame-less on nameless walls With eyes that the world and can't

Like the strangers that you've

The ragged in ragged
The silver thorn of bloody Lie crushed and on the virgin

Now I I know What you tried to say to me
 you suffered for your sanity
How you to set them free
They would not , they're not listening still Perhaps they will