Making Comparisons

Rules for comparing

1. Add -er or -est to make a comparative or superlative form of a one-syllable adjectives.
2. Use more or less with adjectives of more than syllables.
3. Use as + adjective + as to show something is similar or equal to something else.
4. Use the before a superlative adjective.
5. With two comparatives, we often use the..... the
6. Some adjectives and adverbs are irregular: good, better, best

★ Comparatives

We can use other words before a comparative to say how big the difference is.

Love is	far a lot much slightly a bit a little	more important	than money
------------	---	-------------------	---------------

Finally, we use words with as.... as to say there is no difference, a small difference or a big difference.

She is	not quite not not nearly	as old as me
--------	--------------------------------	--------------

Phrases to modify the comparisons

Large difference	very much, a great deal, a lot more, far more, isn't anything like as much
Small difference	a little, slightly, not quite as, a bit more, almost the same as
No difference / equal	no ... than, isn't any more, as good as
