Reviews for Bob's Barbacoa

Manny S. Tucson, AZ ★★★★★

Don't let the name fool you. Bob is short for Roberto, and his barbacoa is authentic! I've tried a lot of Mexican restaurants over the years, and Bob's has the best meat I've ever eaten. It's slow-cooked for hours, and almost melts in your mouth. They usually have a choice of beef or pork, but you can sometimes get lamb or even goat! I recommend trying the goat at least once—it has a very unique flavor. They have several different kinds of salsa, which they make fresh throughout the day, and their tortilla chips are the best! They're hot and crispy, and they always have the perfect amount of salt. I always have to remember not to eat so many that I don't have room for my entrée!

There isn't a lot of room at Bob's, so if you have a big group, you should call ahead—they're almost always crowded. If you would rather eat someplace quiet, you can always get your food to go. This is actually great for parties. The prices are really good, so you can get enough chips, salsa, guacamole, and meat to feed a large group without spending too much money.

Kuni S. Phoenix ★★★☆☆

Casual, efficient, cheap, crowded…Bob's is everything I expect from authentic Mexican takeout. There are no waiters—you order your food at the counter and just pick any table if you can find one! I ordered the beef barbacoa, and it was ready in less than 10 minutes. I think they just cook a whole lot of meat every morning. I found a table outside—which was fine because the weather was nice—and ate about half of my food. The meat was delicious and perfectly cooked, there was just too much to finish. I ate the rest for lunch the next day, and it was still good.

Everything about Bob's food is great. I would just prefer a larger, quieter place to eat it. Maybe one day they'll move the restaurant to a bigger building!

____ 28. Which statement best describes the main idea of the first review?

a. Bob's food is worth the wait and the high price.
b. Bob's is a good place to bring large groups.
c. Bob's has a lot of restaurants to choose from.
d. Bob's offers variety on their menu and in their eating experiences.
