Jack and Terry (1) …….. (to go on) a journey. They (2) …….. (to plan) it for months, but when the day of their flight (3) …… (to come), they (4) …….. (to be) late. Jack's alarm clock (5) …….. (not to go) off because he (6) …….. (to forget) to set it, so they (7) …… (to miss) their plane. They couldn't get another flight until the next day, so they (8) …… (to spend) the night in an airport hotel. The following morning, they (9)…… (to fly) to Australia. After spending a few days in Sydney, they (10) …….. (to begin) their journey. They (11) …… (to plan) to circumnavigate the country in a clockwise direction. To do this, they were going to travel along the east coast, then across the top of the country, down the west coast, and finally back along the south coast to Sydney. They (12) …….. (to hire) hired a campervan two weeks before their journey, which (13) …… (to be) very comfortable, and they (14) …….. (to sleep) in it every night. They (15) …… (to cook) their meals on a small gas stove that they (16) …….. (to buy) before their journey. The first week of their trip was wonderful. They (17) …….. (to swim) in the sea, (18) ……..…..(to walk) in the rainforest, and (19) …….. (to visit) beautiful beaches. However, one evening they (20) …….. (to park) their campervan in a car park near a beach. That night, while they (21) …….. (to sleep), someone (22) …….. (to break) into the campervan and (23) …….. (to steal) all their money. They also (24) …….. (to take) Jack's credit card, which (25) …….. (to keep) in his wallet. In addition, they (26) …….. (to take) Terry's handbag, which (27) …….. (to contain) her mobile phone, driving licence, and passport. When they woke up, Jack and Terry discovered that their things (28) …….. (to miss). They were very upset, but there was nothing they could do.

They reported the theft to the police, who told them that there was little chance of getting their things back. They would have to contact their embassy to get new passports. The next day they drove to the nearest town, where they found a bank, and Jack used his credit card to get some cash. Then they went to a shop and bought a new mobile phone for Terry. They called their families, who were waiting for them to get in touch. Jack's family lived in Australia, and Terry's family lived in England. They (29) …….. (to tell) their families what (30) …….. (to happen), and both families (31) …….. (to send) them some money. They used this money to continue their journey. Finally, they arrived in Perth, a city on the west coast of Australia. There, they (32) …… (to contact) their embassies, and new passports (33) …… (to send) to them. Then they continued their journey. They drove along the south coast of Australia, and after several more weeks of travelling, they returned to Sydney. Their adventure (34) …… (to be) very difficult at times, but overall, they (35) …….. (to enjoy) it.
