Text B.

Hi, Jack! It's Cathy. I'm just calling to say sorry. I didn't come to your birthday party yesterday because I had a very bad day. It all started in the morning. My dog Buddy got very sick. We took him to the hospital and he was operated then. I waited there till I could take him home. Now everything is fine, he's at home, lying on my leg while I'm trying to concentrate on my Maths homework. Anyway, I hope you had a great day. Sorry again and happy birthday for yesterday.

- Yes, Oliver. Thanks for coming.
- I just want to make sure you enjoy learning in our language school and that everything is fine. You don't have any relatives in this country as far as I know.
- No, I don't. Are you happy with the place where you're staying?
- Yes. At first, I wanted to stay with a host family but there was a vacant room in the hostel. My friend and I decided to have a look and we stayed there.
- Fine. Do you cook for yourself in the shared kitchen or do you eat out?
- We cook for ourselves. I can do it quite well. My mum told me.
- Really?

- Hi, Jane! I didn't expect to see you here, at the photo exhibition. I didn't know you're interested in photography.
- No, Frank, I'm not.
- But the exhibition is about the history of our town and I have to do a project on it.
- I see. You collect the information for the project.
- Exactly.
- Right. Any plans for tonight?
- I don't know yet. It's cold and rainy. Nasty weather.
- My sister said it's a sort of weather for knitting and drawing.
- I hate both. What I like is making pies, cakes and biscuits.
- Oh, cooking! It sounds more original than drawing and much tastier.
