Airport jobs

At John F. Kennedy airport, there are hundreds of interesting jobs people can do. We spoke to three people who work there.

James Green, 26, security officer

"After I left college, I worked for a security company overseas. I wanted to come back to the US, so I applied for a job as a security officer at Kennedy. It's our job to keep passengers and staff safe at all times. I meet passengers from all over the world every day and help them with their problems. People are usually friendly, but sometimes they get angry, especially if there are long lines or delays."

Teresa Gomez, 30, service manager

"My job is to help passengers have a good journey through the airport terminal, from Arrivals to Departures. I talk to people all day and I'm tired in the evening. But it's also very exciting, because it changes all the time. One minute you are making new travel arrangements for passengers, and the next minute you are dealing with a problem at customs. The only bad thing about my job is getting up very early."

Husain Khaled, 35, terminal controller

"My first job at the airport was as a security officer. After that, I did a lot of different jobs here. When I saw a job for an air traffic controller, I decided to apply. I like doing this work because there are all kinds of things to deal with – security, communication, safety, and so on. It can be very busy and I spend a lot of time talking to people on my cell phone, but it's always interesting."
