Garrin Goes To The Game

It was the biggest game of the year and Garrin wanted to go. He had talked with his parents about going. They told him if his grades were good, he could go. Garrin hated to do spelling. It was boring. He really wanted to go to the game. He got his Nana to call out the words. His big sister called out the words and his parents did too. Garrin did all of the things he should do in his spelling book. He worked so hard.

Finally, the big day had arrived. It was the night of the big basketball game and it was also spelling test day. He woke up spelling the words out loud. He was going to do his best. He studied all the way to school. It was time for the test. He listened carefully as his teacher called out the words and he wrote each word carefully. He had to wait until the end of the day when the teacher handed out the graded test papers to find out how he did. The teacher called out his name and he went to get his paper but he was so afraid to look at it. Slowly he looked down at the paper and there was a 90 at the top of his paper with a sticker on it. He was going to the game!
