

Listen and repeat. Then act out.

None of the cars I've seen are painted that way. Why is yours painted a different colour on each side?

Well, if I have an accident, the witnesses will spend all their time contradicting each other.

- All refers to more than two people, things or groups. It has a positive meaning and is followed by a plural verb. It is the opposite of none. All the passengers went ashore. All of them felt seasick. They were all seasick. All three/four, etc. of them passed the exam. All + that-clause means 'the only thing' and takes a singular verb. All that he did was complain about everything.
- Both refers to two people, things or groups. It has a positive meaning and is followed by a plural verb. It is the opposite of neither/not either. Jo and Tonia are typists. Both Jo and Tonia are typists. They are both typists. Both of them are typists. Both girls are typists.
- Whole (= complete) is used with singular countable nouns. We use a/the/this/my, etc. + whole + noun. She was hungry, so she ate the whole pizza. ALSO: She was hungry, so she ate all the pizza. We don't use whole with uncountable nouns. He drank all the milk. (NOT: the whole milk ...)
- Either refers to two people, things or groups and is followed by a singular countable noun. You can buy a Fiat or a Ford. Either brand is good.
- Either of + plural noun phrase can be followed by either a singular or plural verb. Either of these two jackets suit(s) you. BUT Either jacket suits you. We can use not ... either (of) instead of neither (of). Either can also be used at the end of a negative sentence. I saw two films, but I didn't like either of them. My brother can't sing well, and I can't either.
- Neither refers to two people, things or groups and has a negative meaning. Neither of the cars is/are cheap. Neither of them is/are cheap. BUT Neither car is cheap.
- Both ... and is followed by a plural verb. Both my father and my brother are here.
- Neither ... nor / Either ... or take either a singular or plural verb, depending on the subject which follows nor or or. Neither John nor Mark is at the park now. Either Tom or his brothers are going to give me a ride home.
- None refers to more than two people, things or groups. It has a negative meaning and isn't followed by a noun. "Are there any vacancies?" "No, none." None of is also used before nouns or object pronouns followed by a verb either in the singular or plural. It is the opposite of all. Paul, Keith and Rod haven't been to Paris. None of the boys/them has/have been to Paris.
- No is followed by a noun. There's no place like home.
- Every is used with singular countable nouns. It refers to a group of people or things and means 'all', 'everyone', 'everything', etc. Tenants have to pay the rent every month. He ate every apple.
- Each is used with singular countable nouns. It means 'one by one', considered individually. Each employee has to sign a contract. (all employees considered individually)
- Every one and each one can be followed by of. Each one of/Every one of the students had done their homework. We normally use each when we talk about two people or things. We use every when we talk about three or more people or things. He bought two new jackets and he paid € 50 for each (one) of them. (NOT: ...everyone ...) Tom has seen a lot of films this month. He enjoyed every one of them.
- One / Ones are used to avoid repetition of a countable noun. "Which shirt do you want?" "This one." (this shirt) "Which shoes did you buy?" "The black ones." (the black shoes)
