Questions 6–10

For each question, choose the correct answer.

The people below are all looking for a music website.

On the opposite page there are eight descriptions of music websites.

Decide which website would be the most suitable for the people below.

Jing wants to find a website that has information on local concerts. She'd like to do online music quizzes and also watch videos which teach you how to play different instruments.

Hans would like to read interviews with musicians and be able to upload videos of his band onto the website. He's also looking for adverts for second-hand guitars.

Precious would like a website where she can find out about piano lessons in her area. She also wants information on music from around the world, and reviews of artists' new recordings.

Antonio wants to read about the history of music and get advice on improving his singing skills. He'd like to find information about shops selling instruments near where he lives.

10

Nikoleta wants a site that focuses on very old music. She'd also like to learn how to read music, and be able to chat online with music lovers like herself.

The best music websites

A allofusmusic.com

Whether you're a singer in a band or play violin in an orchestra, allofusmusic.com has what you need. If you've filmed your own recordings, why not put them on this website? You can enjoy other people's performances from many international locations, as well as videos of professional concerts.

C musicisus.com

A great site if you're into singing, especially opera and other traditional music. There are links to different music schools if you're looking for classes, and an excellent collection of step-by-step video guides for learning a range of instruments – you can even upload your own and teach other users!

E musicolistento.com

Set up by the musical instrument shop of the same name, musicolistento.com has everything – from journalists' opinions on the latest songs and albums to lists of qualified music teachers and classes all over the country for all kinds of instruments. There are also articles on a range of international bands and musicians.

G musicability.com

This site is popular with musicians wanting to show their work to a wider audience. There are hundreds of videos posted by talented young bands from around the world, and even a monthly prize for the one that has been most popular. The comments added by users underneath each video are interesting, too!

B musixyes.net

If you're looking for used or new musical equipment and aren't sure where to go, musixyes.net has a list of every store in the country. There are interviews with famous singers and musicians who give tips on becoming as good as they are, and articles on the development of music around the world through the centuries.

D deepmusic.net

If you're just starting out playing music and need help, the short, easy-to-follow clips on deepmusic.net are exactly what you need. Or pick a show in your area to see your favourite musicians performing, then upload your own review of it afterwards. Every week there's a new set of fun questions for you – test your musical knowledge!

F musicmusic.net musicmusic.net has a good section on music through history, though the information is mainly about music from before the fifteenth century. You can discuss anything related to music on the site with other fans. There's also a useful section on understanding and playing written music.

H songsandtunes.net

The perfect site for buying all kinds of musical instruments that people no longer want! And if you're a musician and want to show other people your work, why not film yourself or your band and post it onto the website for free? You can also read your favourite performers' answers to questions you've always wanted to ask.
