

1 overwhelm

a to predict or estimate what will happen in the future, especially regarding weather or events.

2 forecast

b a small mammal with grayish-brown fur, black markings around its eyes, and a long bushy tail.

3 skin cell

c to use something for your own advantage, often unfairly or selfishly.

4 wildlife

d the solid surface of the earth, including soil, rocks, and sand.

5 ground

e animals and plants that live in their natural environment without human interference.

6 harsh

f a large wild ox found in Southeast Asia, similar to a domestic cow but with larger horns.

7 gopher

g the act of delaying or putting off tasks or responsibilities, often leading to negative consequences.

8 astonishing

h unpleasantly rough or severe, often referring to weather or treatment.

9 decline

i a small burrowing animal with brown fur and short legs, known for digging tunnels and creating mounds of dirt on the surface.

10 racoon

j a large wild ox found in South and Southeast Asia, known for its massive size and powerful build.

11 exploit

k filled with steam or producing a lot of heat and moisture.

12 copper

l to become less or worse in quality, quantity, or strength.

13 procrastination

m very surprising or amazing, causing wonder or amazement.

14 squirrel

n decorative objects such as rings, necklaces, and bracelets that are worn for personal adornment.

15 jewelry

o a reddish-brown metal that is often used to make pipes, wires, and coins.

16 steamy

p to have too much of something at once, causing feelings of being unable to cope or manage.

17 banteng

q an area of land that is not used by people and is in its natural state.

18 gaur

r a small furry animal with a long bushy tail, known for climbing trees and storing food for the winter.

19 counterpart

s a type of cell that makes up the outer layer of your body and protects it from harm.

20 wilderness

t someone or something that has the same job or purpose as another person or thing in a different place or situation.