Are we all like this?

→ I can understand a text about stereotypes.

Read the text. What are the three stereotypes that are mentioned?

Are they true or false?

Justify your answer with a quote from the text.

There are stereotypes that are applied to British culture, some of which are close to the truth, and others which aren't.

One of these is that we live on fish and 5 chips. Fortunately, this is not the case. This dish is a favourite amongst British people, but these days people have a healthier diet.

As in any society, there are some people 10 who choose not to be respectful, but in general Brits are polite. It is normal to hear people saying 'please' and 'thank you' a lot.

Another stereotype is that we all love 15 football and cricket. It's true that both of these sports are popular, but they are not the only ones; rugby is also very popular, as are tennis and horse racing.
