EZ Screen Fans @LizaPrav

Grace and Frankie S1 Ep 11

goals — 3rd person singular, -s for subject

a fair bit — the maturity — he honored — with a big mouth — to count smb out — to have opinions — to spill — a looker — to be broken up

Read the conversations. Put in the verbs in brackets in the correct form.

1

- No, I mean, tell me, what's wrong with him?
- Well, we know he Ambien (eat), what else are we gonna find out?
- He ate his friend. I mean, we do know a fair bit about the darker side of Guy. How much worse can it get?
- Touché.
- And you know what else? It (not/matter). I am so lucky to have somebody.

.....

- I have somebody that (not/care) about that stuff.
- He (appreciate) my maturity and my wisdom.
- Well, fine. Do what you want. But your boyfriend (owe) me $900 in cheese.

2

- For half a minute I thought you were my friend.
- I am your friend, I'm your friend with a big mouth.
- Well, I don't want a friend with a big mouth. I want a friend I can trust. (count) you out.
- Oh, please, don't count me out. I only told Sol, and it's not like telling a real person. He's like my sister.
- Oh, he is the worst person you could tell! He told Robert.
- But isn't it a little bit exciting that Robert (know)? They think they're having all the fun over there. They need to know that some stuff (happen) here, too.

Read the conversation .

- Have you ever been married?
- No.
- Why not?
- Well...
- .....
- Nope.
- You think you're better than me?
- It's "than I?" Maybe a little. I am taller than you. And I have better grammar.
- Where you from? - Des Moines? Okay, I have no opinions on Des Moines.
- Parents divorced? - Not currently.
- Where do you work?
- He actually works for me.

What do we know about him?
Guess which words are missing and put them in in the correct form

He never been married

He he's a little better than Coyote
He have better grammar than Coyote

He for Brianna.

Read the conversation put in the matching subject.

God He

- I'm so honored. Okay, spill it, sister.
- I came home, knows where you were, and there was a man in the kitchen.
- Byron.
- Yeah, he was sitting right there eating a ham sandwich.
- Oh, loves ham. I have to admit, he is a looker. I would not want to sexualize a student, but you're welcome to, go ahead.
- His eyes are really intoxicating.

Read the conversation.
Which word is missing in every gap?

- You kissed somebody?
- _____ doesn't matter.
- Was _____ more than a kiss?
- Oh, God, _____ was more than a kiss!
-_____ was twelve years ago, and we were broken up!
- You still should have told me!
- Sol, please, let _____ go.
- That's not how _____ works.
-_____ would be over by now if you told me then, but you didn't, so letting _____ go might take a while.
- So, when should I have told you? When _____ happened and we weren't speaking? Or when we got back together and things were good again?
- I don't know!
- Okay, okay, fine, you're right. You're absolutely right. I should have told you at the appropriate time, in the appropriate way, but this isn't _____!

Match the words with the definitions.

a fair bit
the maturity	The quality of being fully developed, both physically and emotionally.
to be honored	To feel proud and pleased because someone has shown you respect or admiration.
with a big mouth	A considerable amount or a significant quantity.
to count smb out	To end a romantic relationship or friendship.
to have opinions	To exclude or not consider someone as a possibility.
to spill	Someone who is very attractive or good-looking.
a looker	To hold personal beliefs or views on various matters.
to be broken up	Accidentally reveal or disclose information that was meant to be kept secret.
	Someone who talks a lot, especially about things that should be kept secret.

LIVEWORKSHEETS