

1. The most [narrative / outrageous / influential / academic] person in my life was my history teacher. He really inspired me!
2. When Mike had more responsibility [trust / thrust / truly / fragmented] upon him by his manager, he felt that he couldn't cope.
3. The athlete [attributes / volumes / features / flips] his success to the support of his coach and family.
4. Two of the school's best pupils have gone on to become [eminent / academic / fragmented / outrageous] scientists.
5. It's rude to make [mock / flippant / excellence / revealing] comments when someone is telling you something important.
6. Although Roald Dahl is known for his children's books, he also turned his [heart / mind / hand / arm] to film and TV screenplays.
7. The actor was most famous for [plagiarism / thrusting / narrating / monitoring] children's stories on the radio.
8. The famous play "Death of a Salesman" was written by the American [stash / conjecture / playwright / screenplay] Arthur Miller in 1949.
9. The musician who copied someone else's song was fined for [narration / controversy / travelogue / plagiarism].
10. The reporter made a [sense / glaring / fortune / fake] mistake when he got the film star's name wrong.
11. People started to become worried by the politician's [precisely / unintelligible / versus / erratic] behavior.
12. The reviewer's [take / make / reveal / portrait] on the concert was that the band should have retired years ago.
13. The old soldier's [memories / memoirs / amnesia / memorabilia] contained stories from the First and Second World Wars.
14. Do you actually know any of the facts, or is your story just [masterpiece / saying / controversy / conjecture]?
15. The reviewer said the latest model phone was no different to the previous one, a claim [puzzled / faked / refuted / targeted] by the manufacturer.

16. Expert cleaning of the Van Gogh picture [revealed / laid out / assessed / refuted] another picture hidden underneath.
17. Lots of people want to be famous, but all that [manners / matters / targets / glitters] is not gold.
18. People who win the lottery often find that [too much of a good thing / all's well that ends well] brings them difficulties in the end.
19. We always know what our mother is thinking – she [says that love is blind / wears her heart on her sleeve].
20. It was the band's very good [reward / portrait / award / fortune] that they were discovered by a famous producer.