Grand Heroes

My grandparents live near a lake, and they like to walk around it every day. I love to visit them, so my parents sometimes take me there. Last Saturday, my grandparents and I went for a walk by the lake.

When we got there, we couldn't see any water. There was only ice! But I could see a duck running on the ice. I ran after it. Suddenly, the ice broke and I fell into the water! I couldn't get out!

My grandparents had to do something quickly. They knew they couldn't walk on the ice because it was dangerous. Grandma looked around and saw a rubber boat. She got into the boat and Grandpa gave it a gentle push.

When Grandma got close to me, she helped me get into the boat. There was a rope tied to the boat, and Grandpa was holding the other end of it. So he pulled us back to the shore. I was freezing cold! Grandpa and Grandma gave me a big hug. We went back home so I could take a warm bath and have some hot cocoa.

I learned that it's dangerous to run on a frozen lake, and I'll always be grateful to my grandparents. They're my heroes!
