Exercise 4:

Read the passage “Peacock’s New Feathers” before answering Numbers 6 through 10.

Peacock’s New Feathers

Long ago, Peacock was not a colorful bird. But he was very proud. One day he was walking through the jungle. “I am the best of the birds,” he said to himself. “I fly more swiftly than Eagle. I am more graceful than Heron.”

Peacock came to a pond. He looked at the water. He saw a dull, gray bird. “Is that me?” he asked himself.

His feathers were plain. “How can this be?” Peacock asked in disbelief. “I am the best of the birds! Why should I look so dull?”

Peacock was hopeful the goddess Juno would help. “Please help me, Juno,” he said. “I am the best of the birds. Make me the most beautiful, too.”

Peacock was Juno’s favorite creature. She gave Peacock his wish. She made his feathers colorful and shiny. She made his tail into a wide fan. Each tail feather had a beautiful eye. Peacock loved his new feathers. He felt cheerful now. He held up his feathers. They shimmered brightly in the sun.

Suddenly, Tiger raced out of the bushes. Peacock leaped into the air. It was close, but he got away.

Peacock flew away. He saw Eagle. “Look at my feathers,” he called.

“They are very bright,” said Eagle.

Just then, Tiger raced out of the bushes. "Not again!" screamed Peacock. He leaped up. He flew away. "Why is Tiger chasing me so much?"

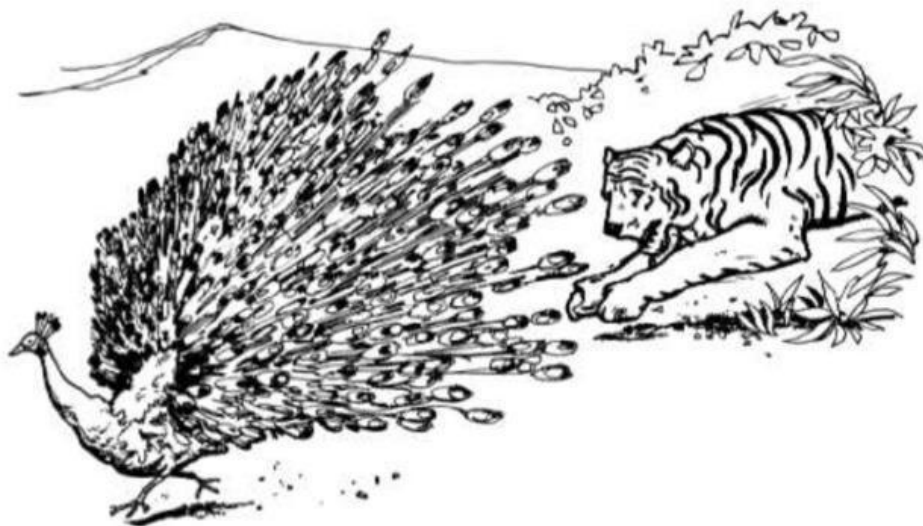

Peacock flew away. He saw Heron. "Look at my feathers," he called.

"They are very bright," said Heron.

Tiger raced out of the bushes again. Peacock screamed. He leaped into the air. "How have you found me so many times, Tiger?" he asked.

Tiger laughed, "Your new feathers are very bright. They show me where you are."

Now Peacock screams loudly whenever he is in danger. To this day he is beautiful but very noisy.
