- B Complete the email. Use be going to and the words in parentheses. Use contractions when possible.

Hi Ellen,

How are you and your family? I can't believe both of our girls are almost done with school.

Sherry has some big plans for this year. In May, she's going to graduate from college. She

1 (she / graduate)

isn't working right away. In June, she

2 (not / start)

and her boyfriend, Victor, are getting married.

3 (get)

The wedding is here in Montreal. After the wedding,

4 (be)

she and Victor are going to Iceland for their honeymoon. But aren't away for very long. Victor has only ten days off from work,

5 (go)

6 (they / not / be)

and Sherry needs to find a job.

7 (need)

children for a few years. First, is Sherry going back to school to get her

8 (Sherry / go)

8 (they / not / have)

master's degree. It's going to be a busy year!

- C Complete the conversations. Use be going to and the words in parentheses.

1. Ann: Victor! I heard you're going to get married this summer—congratulations!

(you / get married)

Where's the wedding?

(where / the wedding / be)

Victor: In Montreal. That's Sherry's hometown.

2. Ann: Did you hear Victor's news?

Bill: No, but let me guess:

(he and Sherry / get married)

Ann: That's right! The wedding is in June, in Montreal.

(be)

3. Jack: Are you going at Victor's wedding?

(you / be)

Ann: No, it isn't a small,

(it / not / go)

(it / be)

family wedding. He can't invite all his friends from work. But I want to get them a gift.

Jack: Are you asking people here in the office to chip in? I'd like to.

(you / ask)
