THREE THINGS TO DO IN ...
NEW YORK

There are so many things to see and do in New York; sometimes it's difficult to know where to start. In this week's guide, we look at three things you can't miss when you visit the city.

Start by spending some time in Central Park. With over 25,000 trees and lots of different types of birds, it's easy to forget you're in a big city. Relax and enjoy the fresh air or go for a tour in a horse and carriage. In the summer you can go out on the lake in a boat or kayak, and in the winter you can go ice-skating! After all that activity, you'll be hungry, so have lunch at the famous Tavern on the Green. Great concerts take place in Central Park, too. Every year the New Year Philharmonic Orchestra gives a free open-air concert, and there's also a New York Shakespeare Festival at the theater in the park. They say that Paris has the Eiffel Tower, London has the London Eye and New York has the Empire State Building. But many people think that the best views of the city are from the "Top of the Rock" – the top floor of the GE

(General Electric) building, a skyscraper in the middle of the city. At 850 feet (260 meters) high, it's the fourteenth tallest building in New York, and from the top you can have a fantastic view of the city. Many people visit the famous Statue of Liberty by ferry, but also on the way there is the Immigration Museum on Ellis Island. This was the place where people first arrived from 1892 to 1954, many after a long and difficult journey from other countries. Most of the island is closed to the general public, but you can visit the museum and find out about the many people who arrived here. You can also go on a tour with a guide to visit some of the old, unused buildings on the island. A very interesting day out for everyone.
